Force Login For Magento

Introduction:

ESTS has developed an extension whose name is the "Force Login" extension, that allows store owners to force customers to log in before viewing certain pages on their Magento 2 website. This can be useful for creating a private shopping experience or for restricting access to certain parts of the site to only registered users. The extension allows store owners to configure which pages or sections of the site require a login, and it also includes features such as redirecting customers to the login page if they try to access restricted content without being logged in. Overall, it helps to increase your website's security and improve the user experience by providing a more personalized and tailored experience for registered users.

Backend:

- Admin can easily enable or disable the extension via backend.
- Option to select which pages of the website require login.
- Ability to customize the login/registration page
- Option to redirect users after login/registration
- Option to show/hide login/registration form on the same page.

Frontend:

- Force login for all pages of the website or specific pages, such as product pages, category pages, and cart pages.
- Redirection to the login page for users who try to access restricted content without being logged in.
- Option for users to register or login on the same page, without being redirected to a separate registration or login page.

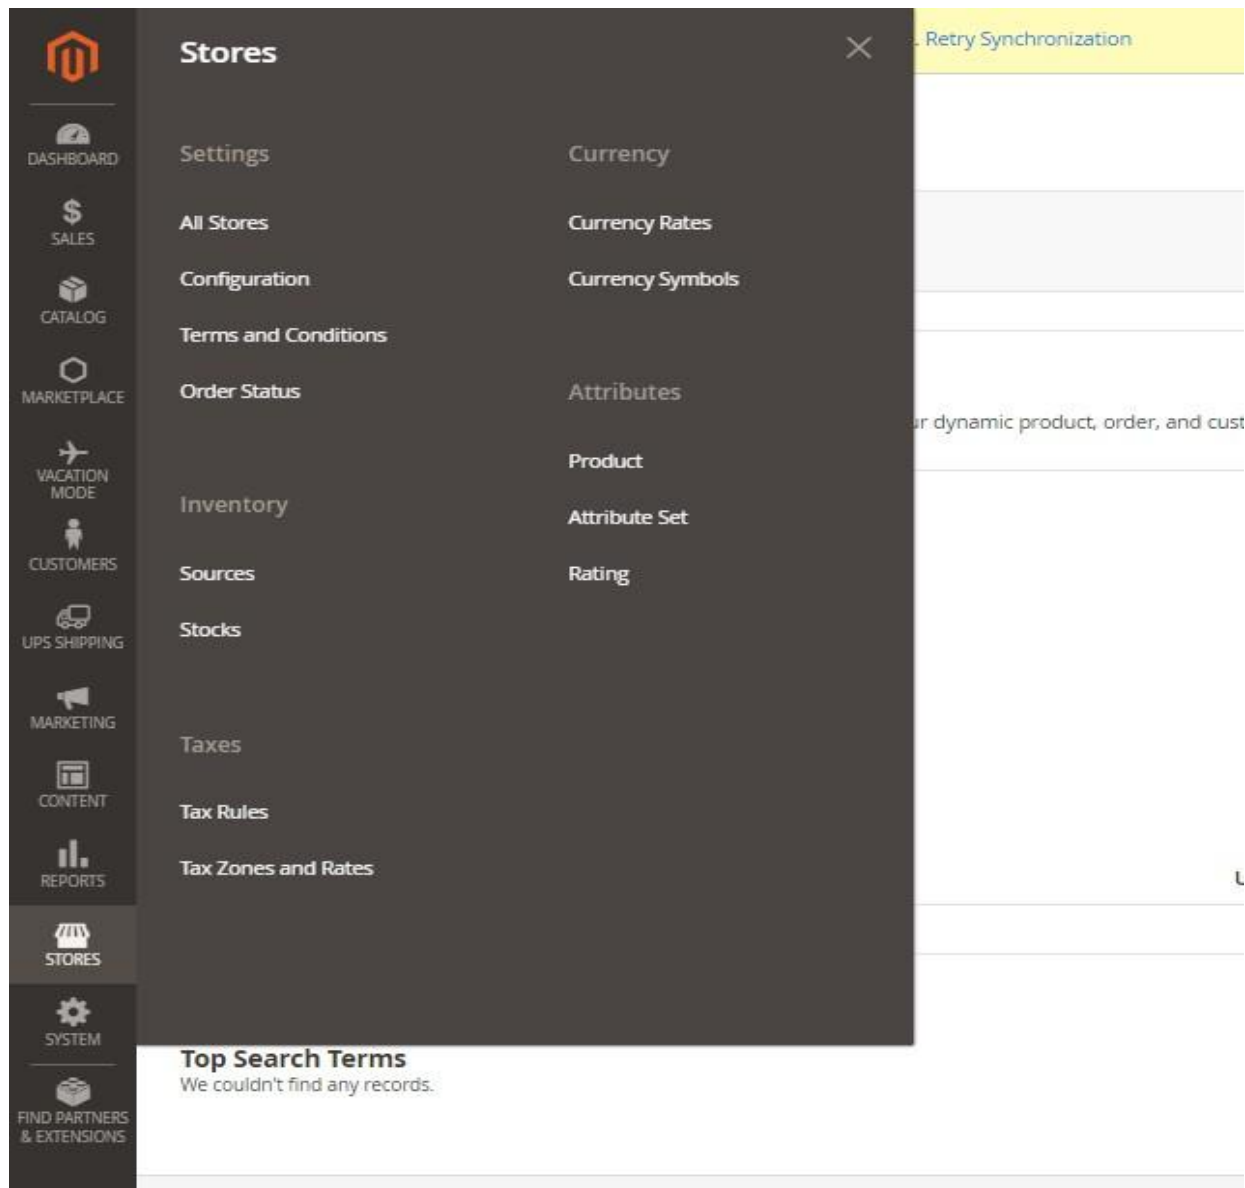

Admins can easily configure the ForceLogin module on their store.
